

Student art to be featured in community calendar

Streetsboro student talent was on display in April at the Parents for Public Schools Celebration of the Arts.

Art created by students from kindergarten through 12th grade was on display at the show. Select pieces were displayed the week prior to the April 9 Celebration of the Arts at the University Hospital Streetsboro Medical Center.

More than 300 people attended the Celebration of the Arts. Attendees enjoyed student performances from the middle school jazz band, the high school marching band, sixth-grade band and music students, and the high school theater group. The event was followed by the high school talent show.

This year, the attendees voted on the pieces of art to be featured in the PPSS Streetsboro community calendar from a selection of finalists. Following are the winners, whose art will appear in the calendar: kindergartener Kameron Whitcomb; first-graders Ali-

THE GATEWAY NEWS PHOTO / ROBERT J. LUCAS
Jacob Maxwell, a fifth-grader, concentrates as he votes on his favorite art work at the "Celebration of the Arts" April 9 at Streetsboro High School.

ya Mallas; second-grader Max Loeser; third-grader Victoria Blangero; fourth-grader MacKenzie Kindall; fifth-graders Karla Swallow, Jessica Reece and Trinity Short; sixth-grader Elise

Gestring; seventh-grader Allison Laudato; eighth-grader Sierra Cook; freshman Sierra Cook; sophomore Simran Dhillon; junior Amaris LaFleme; and senior Jordan Asberry.

Acme celebrates anniversary

Acme worker Lexi Chambers, 17, gives a balloon to Dominic Giardina, 3, with his mom, Kristen Giardina beside him during the Acme's 125th Anniversary Sampling Celebration at their store in Stow on April 9.

Paws' N Claws gets new groomer

Paws 'N Claws Academy in Streetsboro now has pet grooming services available by Katelyn Sapp, above grooming Drew, one her clients. She offers cuts, washes and nail trimmings for any type of dog.

Sapp graduated from Stautzenberger College in Brecksville and is also certified in both dog and cat CPR. In addition to grooming, Paws 'N Claws Academy, owned by certified (CPDT) trainer Hollie Gesaman, is a dog daycare and training facility welcoming new clients regularly.

Recognizing scholarship

THE GATEWAY NEWS PHOTO / BOB GAETJENS

The Streetsboro Area Chamber of Commerce awarded two $500 scholarships April 13 at its annual Scholarship Luncheon, in which Chamber members buy lunches for members of the Streetsboro High School senior class with grade-point averages above 3.5.

Attending were, from left, Streetsboro High School Principal James Hogue, Streetsboro City Schools Superintendent Michael Daulbaugh, scholarship winner Madeline Zupko, Mayor Glenn Broska, scholarship winner Hannah Schuller, Metis Construction President and Chamber Board member Julie Brandle and Streetsboro Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Valerie Fiala.